

Water Safety Guide

Water safety is one of K-Camp's highest concern. Please read through this water safety guide which will explain camp water safety guidelines. Families with questions please feel free to talk through these practices with any of the summer camp staff!

Field Trip Ratios are 1:5 or BETTER!

We understand the importance of having low ratios during field trips. This allows us to enjoy large, public places with our campers with confidence. Kids will be assigned a Counselor and will be buddied up with that same person for the entire field trip.

An arm's length away is rule of thumb!

The counselors will be responsible for a group a 5 or less while we are out and about on our trips. Groups will stay within arm's length from each other at all times. This goes for when we are swimming at a pool or beach. Children will not be allowed to sit out while the rest of their group is involved in swimming. Compromise and consensus will be facilitated by your child's Counselor to ensure everyone is having a great time!

Counselors swim too!

The Counselors will be the first of the group to be in the water to ensure safety bringing the kids into the swimming space. When we have a swim trip, we all swim! Counselors are there to set good examples and to encourage your children to enjoy themselves in the water! Just remember, we always enter water feet first.

Swimming will take place in Lifeguarded water!

All of our swimming field trips are at locations where the pool or beach is staffed with trained lifeguards. Counselors and campers will follow all rules of the site including instructions by the lifeguards. Counselors will also have first aid bags to provide basic first aid care if needed.

Walking feet and gentle hands!

These are two rules that when campers get excited they tend to forget. Counselors will enforce walking feet and gentle hands in and out of the classroom and especially around water. Counselors will remind the campers before each trip about the importance of these to rules to stay safe.

Appropriate gear for swim trips is key!

A swimsuit, towel, sunscreen, hat, and sunglasses are all examples of things you will want to send with your camper. Counselors will reapply sunscreen as needed and take shade breaks to lessen any risk of sunburn. Being prepared, will be the best defense against the summer sun to stay cool and healthy!

Join K-Camp this summer and join the fun!

K-Camp will provide experiences that challenge the mind, spark lifelong friendships, and take us places outdoors and in our community!

Each week, campers will participate in field trips that include water parks, water activities and beaches.
